

Factors Affecting Status

A pair of White-bellied Sea-Eagles Haliaeetus leucogaster nests on the island and would take seabirds for food. The island is seldom visited and there would be little disturbance of the nesting Pelicans in most seasons.

OTHER VERTEBRATES

Green Turtle Chelonia mydas — Fresh nest and two on beach on 1 October 1981.

Hawksbill Turtle Eretmochelys imbricata — One on beach on 7 June 1984.

ERRATUM

SEABIRD ISLAND No. 237
Cook Island, NSW — in Corella (1998) 22(2): 67–68 change to

SEABIRD ISLAND No. 5/1

The number given the islands in the Seabird Island Series is unique to the island. Any subsequent descriptions with new data are given the number of the island and a qualifying number that indicates the number of the 'up-date'.

The number for Cook Island was changed incorrectly from 5/1 to 237 during publication. The number is 5/1 and indicates that this is the first revision of Cook Island since the original description in the Australian Bird Bander (1973) 5: 84.

The number 237 will not be used again in the series.

In over 25 years since the series commenced there have only been two revisions. It is hoped that there will be several 'up-dates' of islands in the future.
