Recovery Round-up Notes

The seabird recoveries show some of particular interest. The recoveries of Wandering Albatrosses and Northern Giant-Petrels reveal that valuable aged birds are available for study on Macquarie Island, and the article on Heard Island in this issue reports other Subantarctic recoveries. Bellambi continues to be a place where valuable southern recoveries can be obtained. We come to expect recoveries of Short-tailed Shearwaters from the north Pacific, the one given is from the USSR many years after banding as a nestling. Reports of movements of tropical birds tend to be fewer so those of several Masked Boobies banded at various localities on Norfolk Island to the Kermadec Islands are an encouraging development as is the one Brown Booby and those of the Lesser Frigatebird (see article in this issue). The Silver Gull banded at Mud Islands as a nestling, subsequently recaptured in the non-breeding season in Queensland and then back in Victoria at breeding time suggests that movements such as those reported by Carrick, R., and Murray, M. D. Aust. Bird Bander 8: 51-56 may be occurring in other colonies.
